THE STRIKE.

Mr. Hoxie Will Make No Proposition Until Quiet Reigns.

Adjutant - General Jamison's Report on the Sedalia Situation.

Governor Marmaduke Has a Conference With a Committee of Citizens and Strikers.

for Sedalia was stopped at Jefferson City, by Gov-ernor Marmaduke, and subsequently ordered to Cenpeared that the reports as to the danger of a riot in that town were greatly exargerated. The strikers at Sedalia requested diovernor Marmaduke and Adutant-General Jamison to mediate between them and their employers, and evinced a disposition to proceed peaceably and quietly to secure the removal of their grievances.

The history of the strike locally to-day has very little of general interest in it. Many of the mentrom the Missouri Pacific shops attended the meeting at 2817 Chouteau avenue yesterday evening and heard what the Sedalia committee had to say as to the strike and its prospects. Although the meeting was a secret one, at which no outsider was admitted, enough has been developed to show that there is little or no prospect of a strike here among the Missouri Pacific men, as long, at any rate, as the situation remains as at present. A Post-Disparture reporter after some difficulty found one of the men who had been at the meeting, and from him learned that if had not been particularly successful. "The trouble with our boys." said he, "is that while it is true they have no organization and no leaders, they dight as well have said so last night, they it srights and duties and not become a disturber of the peace, nor should those men allow a few in their name to become the state that will join me fix this work and put down any wrong-doing."

At Sedalla.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

Archison, Kan., March II.—The situation is unchanged. Passenger and mail trains are not melested. There is no movement of freight trains on the Pacific, the Omah Extension or the Central Branch. The strike has extended West on the Central Branch and employee at the Greenless Shops wasting. Superintendent Hager sent a request a morning to the mayor to have the thirty Piaker detectives sworn in as extra police. The mayor rowdy is no over tacts. The report that the militia was being ordered here is false. The Governor and Board of Commissioners are now in the city in consultation. A committee of strikers is now before them. Their deliberations and conclusions are as yet makes one year before he or spe can serve as an

NO TRAINS EUNNING.

There is no change in the situation here. No freights have been moved to-day. The company made an attempt to get freight out, but the help that they thought they could command would not take the chances and refused to make much of an effort. The people are getting weary of the state of affairs, and business of all kinds is almost at a standstill. The strikers are very quiet, orderly and peaceably disposed. No militia have been here, and, as far as known, none will come.

trouble or disturbance of any kind. Their leaders are disposed to treat matters calmly and fairly, always, of course, from their own standpoint. It is difficult to say, however, that all danger is passed, for there is no telling what may occur. These strikers are all citizens of Sedalia, many of them owning houses and property of their own in that town, and a destruction of property would necessarily involve a great loss to themselves. When I arrived there yesterday, of these men and found them ready and willing to discuss the situation, and accept favorable terms, which, with them, can only mean a restoration of the former wages. Of course, as a State official, I had nothing to do with the settlement of that question, and only requested that they do not tamper with railroad or any other property, and that the trains be allowed to run. A written promise to that effect was drawn up and signed by the executive committee of the strikers last hight, after a consultation. As an evidence of the widespread influence of the striker, Fitzsimmon, one of the leaders, told me that the reason for hesitancy in agreeing to allow the railroad companies to run freight trains was because of conflicting agreements with strikers at other points to hold out until the demands of all the strikers and told them that I had an armed force within easy distance to compel obedience to the law; that unless they desisted this force would be precipitated upon them.

I was MET BY, THE LEADERS

thecountry is next door to useless so far as its aid to art is concerned."

"I have." responded Mr. Keene, "watched criticism in all parts of the United States very closely for several years, and my observation leads nee to believe that its standard is above the standard of acting seen on the stage to-day—that is the writers upon the stage have a more thorough knowledge of dramatic art than the bulk of its exponents, and if actors and acrresses would pay close attention to criticism there would be better work upon the stage. There have been few criticisms upon my work—I mean criticisms on the original of the standard of acting to-day and that of fifteen or twenty years ago.

"Well," replied Mr. Keene in response to a question touching this topio, "it is a very difficult subject to give a decided opinion upon. The whole dramatic saytem has been changed in that time. People nowadays devote themselves more exclusively to one narrow line of business, and owing to the fact that actors and actresses are called upon to play one part during an entire season nowadays, given them ample time in which to master theroles, the public seens great deal that passes for good acting. If, however, you were taking an ordinary company and casting the members in a round of characters, as they did in former days, you would soon find how defective is the present system. There is absolutely no thorough training to day in America. The majority of the younger members of the profession have little or no idea of the meaning and scope of acting. They do not think it necessary to sink their individuality in the assumption of a character; the character is subservient to their own individuality. This is not owing to a lack of intelligence among the young members of the profession. It is simply owing to want of proper instruction. There is an an active of the profession have little or no idea of the meaning and scope of acting. "What would you propose to remedy this state of things?"

"What would you propose to remedy this state of things?"

"If the establishment of stock companies in every large city were practicable, this would be the readiest way. But there seems to be no immediate prospect of this. The next step would be the establishment of an institution like the Paris conservatore, but to do practical good it must not be run upon a purely commercial basis, simply to make money. The frees should be small, the examination of applicants for admission should be thorough and rigid. There are a number of places in the country where they pretend to train people for the stace, but so far as my observation has gone the organizers are more anxious for fees than the well-being of the pupis. You may think this a visionary idea, but if such veterans as Booth MoVicker, Mr. Drew, Murdock and others would countenance such an institution and give it the benefit of their experience, a training school of practical use could readily be established."

"Thating about training and training schools, what do you think of Henry Irving?"

"That," said Mr. Keene, "is a rather broad and a rather delicate question. I have seen so little of him in recent years that I cannot speak except upon hearsay of his acting, but this I can say, that, however humiliating many may think the admission, his wist to this country has been productive of much good. In the first place, he has added to the interest among the play-goers in the higher drama and he has given actors something to think over by his careful and able stage management. He has done more; he has shown managers the advantages of dressing their stages properly, and where I found indifference heretofore I now find eargreeness to co-operate in the perfect representation of pieces. "Touching new plays," said Mr. Keene, "I have recently read two very remarkable works by a young man—a native of New Orienas, I think a great mark in this country, either as a poet or a dramatic writer, I will be much disappointed. THE GREAT SKIN CURE.

My wife had a most annoying eruption make its appearance on the fingers of both hands about the first of last March. Supposed it was try poison. Several physicians saw it, some diagnosing it as above, others pronouncing it salt rheum. A great many domestic remedies were used, with no effect. The disease steadily grew worse. The prescriptions of three of our very best physicians were tried, with but little better results. The terrible itching was so great as to almost deprive her of sleep. After two months of this suffering she began the use of the Curucura Remedies. What was the result? The first application of Curucura allayed the itching, and now after four montas' daily use of them her hands are sound and well. I doubt not if they had been employed at first a cure would have been effected in a short time.

cidence which recurs with painful regularity in the House of Delegates, that whenever ny one trades on the Gas Company's corns, Mr. Davis immediately squeals.

SECRETARY LAMAR is in favor of going very "Backbone" land grant. When this question comes up in the Senate it will furnish a very fine test of the stuff that the Senate is made of. Good sense was shown in refusing to move the troops to Sedalia. Any movement on either side of the strike which unnecessarily aggravates the difficulties of the situation is

OUR crowded columns day after day attest the prestige and popularity of the Post-Dis-PATCH as an advertising medium. They also attest an activity in local business, which is a gratifying circumstance, and an indication that

"Mr. SCHOENBECK, we have been sitting here nearly half a year, and we haven't made a cent. The Cornelius crowd have made all the money." This is what Mr. SCHOENEECK of the House of Delegates says was said to him by Mr. SCHAWACKER, who was elected by his Tellow-citizens of the First Ward to represen them in the House of Delegates.

Ir the cut in wages is a very small one and affects but few men, as the railroad authorities tell us, there is good reason to fear that the amount lost by the railroads themselves through this strike will exceed the amount they wave by the cut. The amount lost by the general public through the interruption of busines does not appear to have entered into the calcu lations of the railroads at all.

THE new Police Board, which has establish will allow the people of St. Louis to attend to their own political matters he will do all they ask of him. Up to date his interference has been neither salutary nor savory.

Base-Ball Matters,

The attacks on Mr. Von der Abe and his clubsing and talks about boycotting are sensibly subsiding; no violent feeling of pay was accompanied by an increase in the case, a workman who has been earning $11 25 in a week by putting in $6 hours work, was to earn $13 50 by putting in $6 hours. This seems to have been a trifling reduction as far as the marely to save $2\frac{1}{2}$ cents an hour in $60 hours of the increase in th THE rigin of the strike on the Missouri Pa-

> THE Globe-Democrat does not think it enough that the strikers "have conducted themselves penceably and have destroyed no property,"

They have, however, denied the right of the own ers of property to control it and use it as they wish, and in so doing they have violated the letter and spirit of the law quite as much as if they had begun the rights of railroad owners without attempting to deprive them thereof by force, is to admit that the men have been guilty of nothing more serious than an error of opinion which they have not attempted to maintain by force in violation of law. So long as strikers obey the law instead of acting on their own opinion, they are doing all that society can ask of them. The doctrine that a mere error of opinion held in actual submission to law is to be treated as an offense against good order and the public equivalent to overt acts of riot and riolence, is not found in the law of the land.

The Bench Show-The Base-Ball Situation Gossip and Personals.

The entry blanks and prize lists for the comin for the same, made to Secretary Munson at Nine teenth and Pine streets, will receive prompt attention. The show will be the Second International Bench Show held under the auspices of the St. Louis Gun Club, and their position is purely unfrontier render the movements of troops in that quarter matters of interest, and are directing attention to that region of Asia as the probable scene of a struggle between Russia and England which may involve all Europe as well as Asia in war. To enable our readers to follow the news intelligently we give them to-day a very accurate and complete map of that territory and its strategic points.

In addit to the railroad strike, our daily report instudes a miner' strike, a quarrel in the House of Delegates, a row in the Boune of the customary circus at Springfield, the desagreement in base-ball circles, and the trouble over the quota of Missouri in the assignment of federal offices. All of these difficulties are, however, as we hopp, merely transitory, and before the end of March we expect the era of good feeling to sot in.

The House of Delegates is going to make its annual investigation of itself in connection with charges of bribery and corruption. It will be remembered that the heroic attempt of last year was a failure on account of the inability of the investigators to secure the presence and the testimony of that gifted young patriot, Mr. Clark Von der Merchand of the strike that they can do nothing towards keeping it within the bounds of law. And yet it is also an hounced that Governor Markin's own city of Archison have notified him that public sympathy is so strong on the side of the strike the year of the condition of the side of the strike the year of the proposed of the strike they can do nothing towards keeping it wi disinterested, save encouraging the breeding ter matters of interest, and are directing at- of fine dogs. Australian correspondents to the English press have always maintained that there was really no difference between Beach and Clifford, but we doubted this from the first, and at every opportunity reprinted the words of an antipodean friend, who was visiting this city during the excitement over Hanlan's defeat by Beach. The gentleman referred to assured us that Beach is superior to Clifford as Hanlan is to Courtney; and while he really believes that Beach is superior to Hanlan, he generously admitted that the Cadadian might have been somewhat handicapped by the long journey and lack of condition. But he warned us to look for another defeat for Hanlan when he again met Beach; and he based his opinion on the ground that if a man could hold Hanlan for a mile and then have a good bit left, he would easily beat the Canadian. However, time alone will tell, but we have faith in Hanlan's ability to outrow Beach, and now that both men are in prime condition, we anticipate a grand struggle on hisrch 28. If Beach is really as good as he is said to be, it will be a race from end to end. Both men are game, and, barring accident, no matter how fast the first mile is rowed, neither Hanlan nor Beach will lay down his sculls until the three miles, three hundred and thirty yards are covered. The stake and honor are worthy of the men, and our only regret is that the great avent is to be decided so far away. If he forthcoming struggle between the two wit

SERGEANT PLUNKETT. First Massachusetts.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch. as Plunkett, the armiess hero of the Twenty-first home in Worcester, yesterday morning, removes one of the most noted survivors of the civil war In all of the many important battles in which his regiment, the Twenty-first Massachusetts was engaged, Sergeant Piunkett distinguished himself by ais gallantry. He was the hero of MANY INCIDENTS OF INDIVIDUAL INTREPIDITY

After the battle of Chantilly, Plunkett discovered that a favorite comrade was missing and he started marmed for the point where the regiment had firs rieud. He crept about cautiously for some time when all at once he found himself facing an armed rebel.

"You are my prisoner," exclaimed the Confederate.

Plunkett hesitated a moment, not feeling sure as to the best course to pursue. He had no idea of surrendering, yet knew it would be almost certain death if he attempted to run. He finally said: "I think not," and at the same time sprang upon his enemy, Seizing him by the throat he soon overpowered and disarmed him. Then presenting an imaginary pistol he compled the fellow to accompany him to his lines, where Plunkett delivered him up to Gen. Reno. But it was at the battle of Fredericksburg that Sergeaut Plunkett performed the crowning act of heroism that gave him his fame and left him the "armless hero of Massachusetts." After repeated attempts had been made by the troops of the Second Corps to carry the enemy's works on Marey's Heights, during which regiment after regiment meited away before the fire of the strongly entrenched enemy, the Twenty-first Massachusetts, with the other regiments of Sturgess' Division was brought forward. In the charge men fell at every step, and by and by the colors went down, and with them Sergeant Collins of Company A. Plunkett sprang forward and seized them. He then held them aloft and cried out to his comrades to follow him. On pressed the Twenty-first, every man catching new inspiration from the conduct of THE BRAYE SERGEANT.

The enemy redoubled their efforts, and shot and shell did frightful work among the little band of heroes. After a while, when the regiment had gained a point nearer the enemy's works than had been reached before, and while Sergeant Plunkett was waving the flag almost in the face of the foe and cheering on his comrades, a rebel shell burst beneath his feet, and the flag went down and with it went Plunkett. When they tried to raise the flag again, they found it lying beneath the poor fellow's body, and wet with his blood. Both his arms had been carried away by the explosion and he had received other injuries. Soon after Sergeant Plunkett's heroic act became known to the State authorities. Adjutant G

"Suckers? What in blank, blank, blankation do "They are wild hairs which grow in partially bald heads, especially when some means have been tried to keep the hair from falling out. They prevent the growth of good hair. Shall I pull them out?" "Pull'em out? Great Gosh, does my head look like it needed to have hair pulled out of it! Better say shall you stick some in. No, sir. whether it is wild hair or any other kind of hair, let it stay."

This conversation was overheard by a Posr-Disparch reporter oetween an old gentleman and a barber, while the reporter was in the next chair enjoying the luxury of a shave. After the old gentleman had gone out, the reporter asked the barber to explain his statement about suckers.

"Did you never hear about suckers?" asked the barber in a tone of commiseration at the ignorance of the reporter. "That comes of having a poor barber."

"What kind of things are they?" you mean by suckers?"

mile back in the woods, by the roadside, beaten out of all human resemblance. His skull was crushed, his ribs were broken, and his face was AMSS OF RAW FIRSH. He was still alive, but unconscious. His $1,500 was gone. He was taken home, and the doctors said he could not live beyond a few hours. At the end of a month he was still alive, but still unconscious. A few days later he came to his senses. In three months he was pronounced out of danger. In another month he was out, but his nearest friend could not recognize him. The scars on his face distorted it hideously, and gave him an appearance that always startled a stranger on meeting him for the first time. His recovery was regarded by surgeons and physicians as one of the most remerkable on record, and it was specially noted. The two Jordans were suspected of having attempted the life of Butcher Brown, and of robbing him. They were arrested. A strong case was made out against them, but they escaped conviction Public sentiment was so strong against them, however, that they left the place. For a long time after the night of the nurder, as Brown always called it, the butcher did not return home after night, and he never again drove that road, there being another one along the river. After a few months the old habit returned, and he RESUMED HIS DANGERDUS NOCTURNAL TRIPS with the old-time regularity, meeting with the usual number of mishaps on the river road as he had on the hill road. His last experience was two miles below Minford. His last experience was two miles below Minford. His last experience was two miles held had several hundred dollars with him. An hour later he was found in the road, covered with blood and insensible. His horse and wagon were nowhere to be seen, and his money was gone. When he was restored to consciousness he said he had been assaulted and robbed no one doubted. Three days later, in spite of his last experience, he started from Minford late on a dark night, in his usual state, with over $500 in pocket. Brown was 66 years old, but in sp

But They Offered Gas Stock Instead of Cash for Votes.

The Grand Jury to be Asked to Investigate Gas Legislation-Delegate fered $5,000 for His Vote-Another Delegate Had Something of the Same Experience-Rich Reading for Tax-

A couple of night's ago Mr. Schoenbeck, who epresents the Sixth Ward in the House of Dele tes, got to thinking over a remark that was ade to him one night last fall by Delegate Schaacker, and the more he thought of it, the more sked him for further particulars. He was surrised to learn that the Posr-Disparces hew of the case and the discovery the termined him to not only tell the whole story to he reporter, but to make a public recital of it in he House of Delegates at a meeting three hours ter—the first being highly commendable and the staltogether reprehensible.

"The facts are," said he, "that one night last fall,

Mr. Davia, who has on more than one occasion proven immediate a staunon friend of Mr. Schawacker, endeavored to prevent this recital by a couple of interruptions, his point being that Mr. Schoenbeck should not the case investigated. He intimated that the whole purpose of the story was to make a little sensation. Mr. Schoenbeck was allowed to finish his story, however, and after stating that he was prepared to swear to it, he offered a resolution cailing for a committee of three to "investigate charges brought against certain members of the House of Delegates concerning the St. Louis and Laclede Gas Light Companies."

Mr. Davis moved to amend by including the waster Gas Company, and by lockluding all members of the House of Delegates in the investigation. Mr. Schoenbeck accepted hoth amendments, and the resolution was adopted.

Speaker Walsh appointed Messrs. Marriott, Dunn and Erueggeman as members of the committee din the controversy, and calling attention to the fact that the committee named was strongly water-gas in its character, he moved it be increased to five. This was done and Messrs, Davis and Wolfinger were added, making a very Lapiny family of the committee.

"And how will you vote?"

"I'll vote 'aye' of course. They can't scare me off with this sort of a trick."

"But did you have no private talk with Schoenbeck, as he charges?"

"I believe I did have a talk with him once, but that was nearly a year and a half ago, when the water gas bill was before the House, and no bill for the old company had yet come before us."

"And what was that talk about?"

"Oh, the water gas people had

on the bill, and I was talking with Schoenbeck about that offer. They were pretty liberal at first in their propositions to give gas stock for votes."

"Who received such offers as that?"

"Oh, several of the members. I don't want to give anything on that just now, but just wait till we have disposed of the bill that is now pending, and then I'll tell a few facts that will open the eyes of the public. I suppose they dou't call it bribery when they give stock for votes. I am prepared to meet this investigation. That bill was all ready to report last night, for we know it was properly engrossed, but those fellows monkeyed with it, and wrote in and scratched out something, so as to make an excuse for holding it back. Then Mariott and Schoenbeck cooked up that resolution. Oh, the whole thing is a scheme."

It was learned in another quarter that Mr. Schoenbeck is not the only member who has ac-beck cooked up that resolution. Oh, the whole thing is a scheme."

It was learned in another quarter that Mr. Schoenbeck is not the only member who has acknowledged that an attempt was made to induce him, for a money consideration, to vote for the bill of the old gas companies, and it is quite probable that he will give the public the full benefit of what he knows. He will, at least, be called upon to do so, and will not lack for encouragement.

At to-night's meeting, if the committee fails to report the bill, it is probable that a motion to take it from the committee will carry, as Messrs. Machanus and Wagner, who voted no last night, are regarded as standing with the men who favor the old companies.

Officer Halloran, in reference to the occurrence at the jail on Saturday night, an account of which was published yesterday, says that Weiggman and Brown were considerably under the influence of liquor and clasims that the only time he struck Weiggman was when the latter objected to Brown's being searched and put his hand to his hip pocket as if to draw a revolver. He accounts for Weigmann's injuries by stating that when he struck him, Weiggman fell and struck his head on the fender of the stove.

Louisiana-Mr. McCreary of Kentuckyconsin-A Servant of Corporations-The Venerable and Active Senator Payne.

Special Correspondence of the Louisi Washington, March, 0.—Eustis, the new Louisi Washington through and Senator, is well known in Washington through his having been here several years ago as a contest-ant for a seat in the Senata. He is a tall, powerful-looking man with a very full round figure. He has a looking man with a very full round figure. He has a jarge head, set well down between his shoulders. His neck is thick and short. His hair is iron gray and just beginning to thin upon the top of his head fils forehead is broad and high. His eyes are a keen blue. His nose is thick and straight. The lower part of his face is concealed by a drooping to make the property of the claim for relief preferred by Chas. F. Lewis and wife. The lady was injured by the falling of one of the iron gas pipe nrches placed on Fifth distant corper, to the left of the presuming officer. It is said that Mr. Stanford is mortified by the numerous publications throughout the country reprepresenting him as a spiritualistic erank. He has been musually reserved since he has come to Washington. When the Senate is in session he remains at his desk, very quietly writing, instead of going about seeking acquamifances among his associates he is a man in the neighborhood of 50 years of age. His figure is large and powerful. He has a very large head. There is a strong contrast between his hair and his mustache and beard. His hair is tinck and dark brown in color, while his mustache and beard, of medium length, are iron gray, and in some places snowy white. The mustache itself is hearly all white. The general characteristics of his face resemble those of Eustis. At a distance they might be taken for brothers. They have the same high color, the same high forehead and straight nose.

same high forehead and straight nose.

The oddest looking addition to the Senate comes from Wisconsin. His name is Spooner. He is the successor to Angus Cameron, who served out Matt Carpenter's unexpired term. He occupies Senator Culien's old seat upon the short back row behind the main body of the Repubnean Senate misleuffeant looking men, but never one wao has approached Spooner in this regard. It is the custom of the clerks and messengers about the Senate, when they are in the Senate Chamber waiting for orders, to drop into any of the vacant seats that there may happen to be in the back rows. Spooner's position gives him the appearance of a messenger waiting to carry some bundle. There is not one of the messengers or clerks who does not look to be more of a man than he. In the first place, he is undersized. He is not a bit over five feet sex incues in height, and or a man than he. In the first place, he is undersized. He is not a bit over fire feet ax incues in height, and would not weight over 120 pounds. This would not be enough to make him look conspicuously inferior among the tail men in the Senate, if he had a good sized nead, one even in proportion to his small body. Senator Vest is a smail man, but he has a large head, full of character, and as he sits at his dess compares very favorably with those about him. Spooner's head is grouesque in its smallness. His face is almost weakened in its tuinness and sharpness of line. The lower part of his face runs to a sharp point. His eyes are small and deeply sunk. His nose is a soping, thin and straight. His mouth is very large. His nair is a taice sandy red, which is brushed up as if with a wisp broom from his right ear, and brushed smooth into a solid bank of har which stands out at right angres from the left side of his head, completely covering the left ear. The hair upon the back side of his head, completely covering the left ear. The hair upon the back side of his head is also brushed to his central point. He has the appearance of having been out in a very high gale of wind, and of haying had his hair frozen still went. ear. The hair upon the back side of his head is also brussed to this central point. He has the appearance of having been out in a very high gaie of wind, and of having had his hair frozen still when the wind was blowing at its highest gauge of velocity. Involuntarily, as one looks at Spooner, he things of his windward and his leeward sides. Underneath this widely blown mass of hair his naturally small face becomes so reduced through contrast, that nothing but a photograph would make any one believe in the real acsurdity of his appearance. Over this small face there steals, whenever he is addressed, the shrewd smirk of the village oracle. When he stands up to talk he squares his legs and slips his hands into his trousers pockets, after the fastion of the loader in the village gossip in the leading grocery stores of Hudson, wisconsin, his home. He has been a useful little man about Madison, where he has been a number of years employed by the railroad interests of that State. He is said to be an attorney with good railroad practice and has some reputation for skill and legal knowledge. He was sent to the Senate by the railroad corporations who have employed him in the past. He is in the Senate to day as the messenger boy of these corporations. If he should wear a little square cap with the gold band of these corporations about it, he would look much better than he does posing as an actua. United States Senator, sitting there as the legitimate successor of the great Matt Carpenter, the foremost lawyer of his age, the most picturesquely handsone man of his time, and one of the most graceful, most persuasive, most convincing and eloquent orators ever known in the Senate of the United some man of his time, and one of the unst graceful, most persuasive, most convincing and eloquent orators ever known in the Senate of the United States. Matt Carpenter had an exquisite sense of the ludicrous. Some of his most maddening satirical thrusts would be preceded by a funny little chuckle, if his opponent presented too wide a front of absurdity. If there is such a thing as spirits returning to this world, I can imagine Matt Carpenter standing upon the Senate floor and chuckling in the perfection of humorous delight over this representative which Wisconsin has sent to fill his place. Spooner may be a great man, but he never could prove it by any circumstantial evidence which has thus far been developed.

Senator H. B. Payne takes very kindly to his return to public life. He coosed his Congressional carcer, as net hought, upon the 4th of March, 1877. He was a memoer of the Electoral Commission of that period. He did his best as a member of that Commission to secure the countind of the vote for Tilden. Failing in that, he was against the anarchists in the House who sought to defeat the entre count so as to leave the country without a President. Mr. Payne, although a little over 70 years of age, does not look a day over 60. He is a little above medium height, and is slightly round-shouldered. He is always dressed in black and wears his black silk hat well over on the bace of his head. His face is mild in expression, fresh in color, irregular in features and smooth shaven as a mone's. He always wears a pair of steel-bowed glasses well down upon his nose, and never looks through them except when he is reading. He intends to suephouse here, and will be one of the prominent figures under the new Administration. He is a man of experience in public affairs, and will undoutedly be one of the leaders upon the Democratic side in the Senate.

to a large fortune. On Sunday are Downes was quietly reading the "personals" in the Herald, when her eye fell upon a notice inviting the children of George Rawings to call upon William Raich at Chambers and Williams streets, as they might there learn something to their advantage. Mrs. Downes at once made the astonished Thomas. Wrose father's name was George, promise her the handsomest slik dress that could be bought in New York, and a sealskin sacque for her daughter.

at once made the astonished Thomas, whose father's name was Geofree, promise her the handsomest slik dress that could be bought in New York, and a sealskin sacque for her daughter.

THOMAS PROMISED ALL, and took early occasion to call upon Raich. What he learned there convinced him and his friends that he is one of this heirs to an estate of £37,000 sterling. Mrs. Downes, her son and daughter and Thomas were sitting in a back kitchen, dimly lighted by two kerosene lamps, when your correspondent-reparter called last evening. On a table in the center of the room was a pack of soiled cards, and the reporter's visit had evidently interrupted a friendly rubber. Nothing about the rooms spoke of the wealth to which one of the party had suddenly fallen heir. Thomas related his story in a straightforward way, and his open counten ance is a proof that he is not one to be spo.led by fortune's favors. George Rawlings was a gunsmith at Birmingham. About his father's relations Thomas knows little, for George Rawlings' first marriage had been bitterly opposed by all his family, and even when the wife died.

THE FEUD DID NOT CRASE.

He was never reconciled to his father, but at last his mother forgave him, and left him on her death a little property. In 1870, George Rawlings determined to come to America. His first wife was dead, and he had married again, but he was still on bad terms with his relations, and decided to begin life sgain in the new world. He brought with him his wife, his son, Thomas James, and his daughter, He found employment with the Singer Machine Company, and remained there for ten years. In 1880 he removed to Woodside, where his daughter married a Mr. Randall, living at Newtown and where he himself soon died. His wife did not long survive him. Thos. James and his daughter married a Mr. Randall, living at Newtown and where he himself soon died. His wife did not long survive him. Thos. James was left an orphan when about 16 years o d. His father had often spoken to him or a large fortune which some day her h

HOSPITALITIES OF HIS FATER'S HOPES, and since that time Thomas has been living as one of the Downes' tamily, and doing what work he could in Mr. Downes' undertaking shop. When Thomas saw the advertisement in the Herald, he at once got together his papers and called at Mr. Baich's address. Mr. Raich examined the papers, said he was convinced that Thomas and his sister were the persons of whom he was in search, and then informed him that the estate was about out of chancery, that the litigation was over, and that the sum of £37,000 was waiting to be claimed by those who were of the Rawlings family. He concluded by kindly offering to give Thomas his assistance in obtaining possession of his fortune. in consideration of 15 per cent of the profits. Thomas thanked him heartily, but declined his kind offor. Raich then proposed to allow him to leave the papers in his safe, if Thomas was afraid of losing themon his way home. This offer also, Thomas, with excellent judgment, thankfully decimed. Raich is said to be a claims agent. He says that he makes two yearly visits to England for the purpose of investigating the proceedings of the Control of Chancery, and it was in this way that he discovered the fortune to which Thomas is one of the heirs. Thomas has wisely decided to write to friends in Birmingham, and to an uncel living in Kentucky, before he takes any action in the matter. He feels certain that there can be no mistake about the genuineness of the fortune, for his father often predicted that the estate of his uncle would some day make them all rich. Thomas is not, however the only half. These is a leavent of the contract of

When asked what he would do with his fortne, Thomas replied, "Well, I guess I'il go first to England, and have another look at the old country. But I don't want to live there. I'll come back here to live and pul my money into some good busines. One think I've determined not to do—I'm not going to speculate."

We have every evidence that beautiful Spring is getting a good solid grip on this community. The small boy spins his top on the sidewalk and base ball cranks have already located the championship; the ladies auxiously search the millinery shops and dry goods stores for "that love of a bonnet?" and the latest thing in dress fabrics, while the coal man angel unawares for some months past in the person of Thomas James Rawlings, an English boy, whom Downes and everybody else supposed to be penniless, but who has suddenly developed into the heir to a large fortune.
